TAO SHIATSU: Healing from the Buddha

Founded by the Buddhist priest Ryokyu Endo, TAO SHIATSU is a Revolutionary Ki Meridian Oriental Medical Treatment.

It is based on the Buddhist (Mahayana) and Taoist concepts of unification with the Universal Spirit, and deep compassion for and oneness of all human beings. In the spirit of Eastern Medicine's holistic approach to health, the Meridian Method of Tao Shiatsu is the expression of the practitioner's heart and spirit. It affects the 'whole' person – physical, emotional and energetic – and not just some part of the person.

Meridians are Ki. Meridians, by their very nature as channels of Ki or life-energy, exist as Ki, and respond to our intention and our heart, and not to our ego-consciousness. They can be identified only in a state of unification between the therapist, the patient and the Universal Spirit.

The purpose of Tao Shiatsu treatment is to heal the patient's subconscious, because Ki exists in the subconscious. This is the fundamental difference between Tao Shiatsu and not only other Shiatsu methods but also other medical treatment methods of the modern age.

Kishindo(Aikido) is based on the method of KI
